

NOTED SCIENTIST DIES

Hugo Muensterberg, Harvard Psychologist, Drops Dead as He Lectures.

By United Press

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 16.—Hugo Muensterberg of Harvard University, noted German psychologist, dropped dead today while lecturing to a class of students at Radcliffe College. Muensterberg was taken suddenly ill. He fell to the floor, and died within a few minutes after being assisted to a chair.

Physicians who were called in announced that they did not at present know the cause of the death.

With his last breath the learned thinker attempted to quell the disturbance which spread through his class of girls as he fell to the floor.

Hugo Muensterberg had delivered many lectures and written numerous newspaper articles since the war began, setting forth his German viewpoint. Early in the war there were demands from the Allies' sympathizers for his removal from the faculty of Harvard. The British censors recently intercepted letters from the professor addressed to persons in Germany, as a result of which it was claimed that he was an active agent of the Germans in the United States.

Dr. Hugo Muensterberg has been professor of psychology at Harvard since 1892, and has also been director of the psychological laboratory, which he founded. He holds the degrees of Ph.D. from Leipzig, M. D. Heidelberg, A. M. Harvard, LL. D. Washington University and Litt. D. from Lafayette College.

Professor Muensterberg was born in Leipzig, Germany, June 1, 1863, was graduated from the Danzig Gymnasium, and, as indicated above, gained his later education in Germany and the United States. He married Selma Oppler, of Strassburg, Germany, in 1887.

Doctor Muensterberg is probably most widely known in America as an author, having written numerous books and articles on psychology. Among the books by him are: "Psychology and the Teacher," "American Problems," "Psychology and Industrial Efficiency," "Psychology and Social Sanity," "The War and America," and "The Peace and America."

TWAS NEWSLESS SHORT STORY

"The Mystery of the Missing Mirror," or "Who Gets the $10?"

"Hello—Missourian?"

"Missourian."

"The University Library. I want to give you an ad, which you will take carefully."

"Yes, sir."

"At the top, place $10; under that put 'reward'; under that, write 'offer for information leading to—'"

"$10 for information leading to—"

"Yes, sir."

"To the apprehension and conviction of the person who took the large mirror from men's cloakroom at the University Library, Friday, December 15'."

"Yes, sir, I have it all. Now do you want—"

"Oh never mind now—we just found out all about it."

"Huh?"

"Never mind."

"Where did you get the information—a news story, sir—Who Gets the $10?"

"No, I'd rather not."

"Yes, sir."

TOO MUCH THRIFT FOR A DANCE

Pre-Christmas Saving Postpones St. Louis Club's Frolic.

Cutting down on the board bill is not the only way students have of saving money for Christmas. The St. Louis Club blames the spirit of saving just before the holidays for the postponement of the dance it was to have next Wednesday. The club plans to hold the dance some time next month, possibly between semesters, when students are again in good financial state because of the New Year's allowance.

The club has been successful in getting many special accommodations from the railroads for the trip home for the holidays.

I. O. O. F. Holds Annual Election.

The I. O. O. F. Encampment, No. 74, held its annual election Friday night at the Odd Fellows Hall in the Boone Building. The officers elected were: Chief patriarch, A. B. Long; senior warden, W. I. Simpson; junior warden, B. F. Baker; high priest, G. W. Brady; corresponding scribe, A. Y. Slate; financial secretary, L. B. Eubank; treasurer, C. L. Edwards.

COLUMBIAN BACK FROM BORDER

Ray Horner, After Five Month's Service, Returns on Month Furlough.

Ray Horner, who was one of the Columbians who went to the Mexican border with the Fourth Missouri Regiment when the call to militia men was given, arrived in Columbia yesterday on a thirty-day furlough. Before coming to Columbia, Horner visited his parents in Tulsa, Okla.

When Horner left for the border, he was a corporal in the motorcycle squad. Later he was placed in charge of this detachment. He is now assigned to the regimental band as the motorcycles are being used only in emergencies.

The Fourth Missouri is still expecting to be sent home, according to Horner, but as they are now preparing for the winter by putting floors in the tents, enclosing the bathhouses and receiving stoves for them, it is probable that they will not be mustered soon. The Second Missouri is not taking these precautions.

When he left the border, the troops had just returned from patrol duty and were getting ready for a sham battle, Horner said. He left before the "battle" took place. The St. Louis Republic yesterday morning reported that the Second and Fourth Missouri infantries, which comprised one of the invading "armies," easily took the city of Laredo from the second "army" made up from troops from Florida and Massachusetts after a two-day "battle."

In September Horner made the trip from the border to Columbia on his motorcycle. This time he came by rail.
